Letter from Tiffany

Christmas Lunch, Dec. 2015

She'll be looking over the questionnaires many of you filled out in December. According to those, we'll be having meat... a lot of it. ;-)

So far, the projected schedule is still looking optimistic for the expansion being completed at the end of January. Please feel free to call us at City Hall in mid-January to check in with the progress. While I am at City Hall, you can still reach me by calling the regular ACC number (503. 557.4704) or by email at tcarlson@westlinoregon.gov.

I want to highlight a new activity we'll be trying once we reopen—Adult Coloring! This was a new concept to me but apparently; it's quite popular right now among older adults and has been shown to be a highly positive, healthy activity for brain stimulation and relaxation. Let's give it a try and see how it goes. For now, I've listed it for Tuesdays from 1-3 PM. We'll provide the color pencils and have books available to purchase. You can bring your own if you'd like also.

Again, while we're closed for the remainder of the construction, don't be a stranger. I'd love to hear from you and hope this holiday season has been a wonderful time with family and friends.

To a fantastic new year!!!

– Tiffany

Greetings from City Hall:

I miss seeing you all on a regular occasion! This has certainly been an interesting and exciting transition, but I am really looking forward to getting back to our regular community. I think I miss the laughter and great conversations the most – it feels like a large family. It was great to see so many of you at the holiday lunch and also wonderful to get so much feedback on the bus trips and meals too. Thank you for the many encouraging and kind words.

Speaking of meals, we have a new meals coordinator! I'm looking forward to more of you meeting Cass and I'm delighted to have her join our community. Make sure to check out her write up in this newsletter. She will be joining us for lunches on Fridays at the church in January and then get into the full swing once the ACC reopens.

Not Quite President's Corner

Friends of the WLACC are looking with great excitement toward the completion of the new addition to the building. The new year will bring new opportunities as well as new challenges. Maybe there might even be a surprise or two. (Don't ask me what. It would not then be a surprise).

I look forward to seeing the new addition. But mostly I look forward to seeing my friends again. The WLACC is just a building. It is the people inside who make this building come alive. We are blessed to have a membership of active people who strive to make things better.

Some of us have been separated from our friends for too long a period. It is my hope, during this winter season, that we will regroup and enjoy the company of others once again.

We are a Friends Group. It is the people who make this building a special place. Happy New Year to All.

– Bill Barger

OUR beloved Center. . .

I think is getting there. Although hard to believe when you visit and see all the empty rooms. Our reception used to hold smiley faces from two or more people sitting there, chatting away, while greeting people happily, and answering phone calls and questions.

Tiffany's office empty. We were so used to finding her behind her computer, standing tall, but always turning around to greet you with a smile on her face, or to answer your questions. Often we would find her in the kitchen, busy helping out with the menus planned for that day. We may not see her so easily in her new office which seems to be somewhat tucked away behind the reception area. Still we do know that she will always be close by to interact with us, and to make sure that all goes well with our beloved Center.

Our Gift Shop, which has been called, "The Best Kept Secret in West Linn," is temporarily closed and will reopen early next year when the Center's expansion project is complete. Veronica is looking forward to the additional space and the introduction of many new items for our shoppers. Included in the shop's renovation will be full-extension drawers for easier storage and a safer environment for our wonderful Gift Shop volunteers. A special "thank you" to our FACC Board for funding this much-needed improvement to our shop. Looking forward to our GRAND REOPENING!

As the sign indicates, and as Bill Barger has pointed out in the previous newsletter, 'having patience and being a little flexible will help us all get through this'. The constructions won't last forever, and we will have a wonderful, renewed and greatly improved Center.

There's still time to renew your membership for 2016. Remember, your contribution goes a long way. Fill out the form in this newsletter and mail to: WLACC, c/o City Hall, 22500 Salamo Road, Ste. 1100, West Linn, OR 97068.

*Introducing . . .FOCUS On: Fall Prevention — by Keli Stevens

Every year 1.6 million adults over the age of 65 are treated in emergency rooms for fall related injuries. Put another way, that is a whopping one out of three people who will take a spill and severely hurt themselves this year. Will it be you? Someone you know? Luckily, these type of injuries can easily be avoided with a little awareness and action.

Do you know what potential dangers are hiding in your house? There are plenty. Many look commonplace and harmless. Once you learn how to evaluate your surroundings you can easily make the necessary adjustments to drastically lower your risk for falling related injuries.

Let's begin with the bathroom. A great number of falls occur here. Take a look at the floor. Are there things that you might trip on? Bath mats and towels can slide and trip you. Remove all things in your path, including cords that might be dangling off the counter. Puddles of water can also be a potential slipping hazard. Be sure to wipe them up. Next, think about installing grab bars and rails around tubs and toilets. There are also a number of assisting products, such as bath seats or benches, that will make it easier and safer to attend to your routine.

Now use the same type of evaluation around the rest of your house. Look at the floors and especially in high traffic areas. Move any furniture you have to walk around, as well as any small throw rugs or cords that may trip you. Ensure that all area rugs are secured with non-slip backing. Pick up any blankets, books, newspapers, magazines or other items. Your goal is to keep all floors free and clear, always. Next, take the time to re-organize your space. Pull items that you use regularly to easily accessed locations. Waist high shelves and cupboards are a great choice. Try to limit your need to climb on things or stretch to reach.

One other important consideration is your lighting. Is your living space bright enough? Can you see down the hallway? From your bathroom to the bed? Up or down steps and stair cases? Think about changing out bulbs for brighter fluorescent ones, adding lamps and night lights. Even an inexpensive stick on battery style light source can be a huge help in keeping your pathway appropriately lit and thereby preventing a fall.

If you live in a home with stairs, make sure they are flat, unbroken, well-lit and free of all items and rugs. Check to see that railings are secure and run the entire length of the stairs. There should be a railing on both sides. Get an electrician to put in a light switch at the top and the bottom of the stair well. If there isn't a light over the stairs, have the electrician add one.

Looking at your home with a knowledgeable eye will go a long way to preventing accidental falls. There are also a number of things you can do in addition to home safety. You can have routine check-ups to see if your vision or ears might affect your balance. You may also need to check with your doctor or pharmacist to determine whether or not any medications you take might make you dizzy. If needed, get a cane, walker or wheelchair to eliminate balance struggles. You should make an effort to stay active and physically fit. Your coordination, balance and mobility depend on muscle strength and motor control. Regular exercise can keep you on your feet, and help you resist injury should you fall.

Taking a little time for fall prevention can result in a priceless payout. You, not in the hospital with broken bones and other injuries! Be safe and be well!

DOG Savvy... Let's Be Safer As We Age

Would You Clone Your Dog To Quell Your Grief? – by Dianne Gorveatt

When our cat was killed by a car, my husband and I had to go in for grief counseling; we weren't expecting to feel it that strongly. Melody came to us as a kitten; for eleven years, she was the glue that kept us together. She had just the right amount of humor, affection, smarts, and a big touch of magic. The day after she died, a peacock pecked on our sliding glass door and stayed, like a gaudy angel, haunting Melody's favorite places. We were mesmerized for three days, and then he vanished. If only there had been some way to bring her back...

Now there is—sort of. Cloning. Commercial cloning of dogs and cats is offered by at least two bio-tech companies—one in South Korea, another in China. And instead of facing the permanent loss of beloved lifetime companions, some people are choosing to clone them. If cloning had been available back then in the way that it is now, would we have done it? Probably not. Here's why: first, the price; the fee for cloning runs in the tens of thousands. Second obstacle would have been that currently cloning is done in countries lacking our concern for animal welfare. Cloning is expensive in animal terms as well; more than one animal is used—in the uneasy sense of the word—throughout the procedure. We all know that there are hidden costs in animal terms behind all modern medical miracles and many technological advances, but, of necessity, we turn away from those considerations when we need the benefits. So, I can understand how people compelled by grief might turn to cloning. And for some, it's working out.

Louisiana veterinarian Phillip Dupont has been more than happy with the two dogs cloned from his beloved lifetime dog, Melvin. The process—done by HBion in South Korea—wasn't cheap. Dupont reports spending $100,000.

But there is another consideration that goes beyond expense; clones are not precise copies. There are subtle differences in behavior, temperament, vitality, and even appearance. This should come as no surprise to anyone whose been around twins for very long! To minimize possible differences in behavior, Dupont ordered the clones before Melvin died. The two resulting puppies had a year to be influenced by Melvin, learning his habits and mannerisms. It's hard to imagine what Melvin thought of the puppies, since dogs 'see' the world so vividly through their noses. Did the puppies smell exactly the same? Did they smell like him? I'd love to see a video of their first sniff session!

One person who had a pet cloned reported another downside; when the second pet died, it brought the grief back. Perhaps the best way to heal from grief is to do what people have always done: acknowledge it, experience it, and move on.

WELCOME CASSANDRA

Hello West Linn. I'd like to take a moment to introduce myself. I'm Cassandra Smit, the new Meals Coordinator for the Adult Community Center. This position is very exciting to me because it combines my passion for food and wine together with my love of working with seniors and giving back to our community.

I hold an Activities Director certification from the State of Oregon. I am also a certified Sommelier with several years experience coordinating wine and food pairing events as a Tasting Room Manager/Wine Club Manager for local wineries in the North Willamette Valley. I was also active in the North Willamette Vintners Association and served on the board.

My greatest love is my family.

I married my high school sweetheart, Craig Smit. We've been married for almost 23 years and have three beautiful daughters; Alysse (19), Sydney (15) and Liliana (10). We enjoy cooking together as a family, crabbing at the beach, and gathering wild chanterelle mushrooms a week after the first rainfall every Autumn.

I'm extremely grateful for this opportunity and I look forward to meeting many of you at the Adult Community Center!

~ Cassandra
