Prevent and Decrease Urinary Incontinence

A special, two-part presentation for women led by Kelly Bradley, licensed Physical Therapist, specializing in women's holistic pelvic healing and Founder of Age Well Home & Lifestyle.

- Did you know that urinary incontinence can often be prevented or reduced by learning to connect with and relax your pelvic floor? The myth that you "just need to do kegels" is outdated and incomplete. For many women, pelvic floor muscles are too tight and weak--and tightening them further isn't the solution. Join Kelly for session 1 & 2 for this important workshop.

Wednesday, April 2nd & 30th at 1:00pm at the West Linn Adult Community Center

What you will learn in workshop 1

- | The connection between your breath and your pelvic floor. | The importance of relaxation before strengthening. | Reprogramming your awareness |
|---|---|--|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Learn how to identify and gently connect with your pelvic bowl using breathing and awareness exercises. | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Understand why a too-tight pelvic floor can worsen symptoms.• Practice tools to stop clenching—whether it's your pelvic floor, stomach, or glutes. | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Identify when stress or habits cause you to unconsciously clench.• Begin retraining your pelvic floor to relax and release tension. |

What you will learn in workshop 2

- | Strengthening the Pelvic Bowl | Building Coordination and Agility | Improving Endurance for Everyday Activities |
|---|--|---|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Learn safe, effective exercises that build true strength in the pelvic floor without creating unnecessary tension | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Discover how to train your pelvic floor to respond on demand—whether it's laughing, sneezing, or exercising. | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Learn how to build lasting muscle endurance so your pelvic floor can support you all day long |
